

OKINAWA
PEACE PRIZE

沖縄平和賞

Greeting

The Okinawa Peace Prize Committee established the Okinawa Peace Prize in 2002 in order to convey the “heart of Okinawa” – Okinawa’s spirit in pursuing peace – to the world, and to contribute towards the creation of international peace.

Previously, Okinawa Peace Prize honored “Peshawar-kai Support Group of Dr.Tetsu Nakamura”, “ Association of Medical Doctor of Asia (AMDA International)”, “The Okinawa-Laos Cleft Palate Patient Support Center”, “Association for Aid and Relief, Japan (AAR Japan)”, “Services for the Health in Asian and African Regions (SHARE)”, “ Shapla Neer =Citizens’Committee in Japan for Overseas Support “ , “International Medical Volunteers Japan Heart”, “Japan Association for Refugees (JAR)” , “Japan International Volunteer Center (JVC)”, “Japan NGO Center for International Cooperation (JANIC)” and “The Himeyuri Peace Museum run by the Okinawa Himeyuri Peace Foundation” and won support from a great number of people.

Possessing a belief like the one inscribed on the Bankoku-shinryo Bell-“Our oars make a bridge to the nations”-the people of Okinawa had taken active parts in becoming the bridge between countries in Asia, and thereby developed a tolerance for accepting diversity as well as a sprit of mutual support.

However, at the time of the Pacific War, a sever land battle that engulfed Okinawan civilians was fought, claiming over 200,000 precious lives and irreplaceable cultural heritages. Following the war, Okinawa endured 27 years under the rule of the US and today, after the reversion to Japanese administration, Okinawan people still live with the heavy burden of a vast concentration of American military bases that imposes hardships on the people and impedes the prefecture’s development in numerous ways.

Thorough such a historical experience, Okinawan people deeply acknowledge the preciousness of life and the importance of peace. We pledge to never again allow the recurrence of war tragedy and believe that in order to work toward the creation of eternal peace, it is our duty to correctly pass on the facts and lessons learnt from the past to our younger generations, who will be the leaders of the 21st century.

Therefore, we established the “Cornerstone of Peace” and engraved the names of all those who sacrificed in the Battle of Okinawa regardless of their nationalities and status (soldiers or civilians). Moreover, in order to pass on the historical lessons learnt from the Battle of Okinawa and to make contributions toward the creation of eternal peace, we gathered the information on war experiences from our people and established the “Peace Memorial Museum”.

Since the end of the Cold War, the international society has been searching for peace, stability and a new order of international framework. Despite such pursuits, the international society is still experiencing continuous outbreaks of regional conflicts and many issues related to the threatening of life and basic principles of human rights remain. In order to solve these issues and to realize eternal peace, it is important for every global citizen to work towards attaining mutual understanding with a generous heart and to achieve greater cooperation.

Through the Okinawa Peace Prize, we aim to convey the “heart of Okinawa” with its deep longing for peace to the world. In supporting activities that help to build and sustain peace, the prize is a step toward making “Okinawa” a hub of peaceful relations in the Asia-Pacific region.

We will forever continue this peace prize, and become involved the building of international peace with the rest of the world. We are here to strive toward attaining both national and international recognition of this prize as an “Asset of Okinawa”.

I would like to close my message by expressing my hopes for your further support and cooperation.

Denny Tamaki
Governor, Okinawa Prefecture
Okinawa Peace Prize Executive Committee Chairman

“Peshawar-Kai for its support of the work of Dr. Tetsu Nakamura” (hereinafter referred to as “Peshawar-kai”) was established in 1983 to help Dr. Nakamura conduct medical activities in Pakistan and Afghanistan. In an unspeakably difficult environment due to civil war and social anxiety, the members of Peshawar-kai have been continuing selfless service overcoming several difficulties with a belief, “Go where others would not go”, “Do what others would not go”, and do so with the principle of nonviolence”.

Their policy is to “Operate Peshawar-kai with a spirit of “mutual support” regardless of ideology and belief”. Locally, they have pursued a mission to provide equal service regardless of politics, ethnicity, religion and language. Through these activities, they have contributed in promoting the materialization of peace on the basis of indigenous diversity.

Supporters sharing beliefs with Peshawar-kai, an organization that has been conducting diligent activities, have formed a network that expanded nationwide; the organization has grown to having a membership of approximately 8,000. The Peshawar-kai is funded by membership fee and donation. It does not have a permanent staff, and has minimized operation costs so that most of the funding can be channeled into local activities.

Currently, the Peshawar-kai operates 1 hospital and 4 clinics in Pakistan and Afghanistan, and attends to approximately 300,000 patients annually.

The catastrophic drought has led to a miserable condition in Afghanistan where there have been shortages of potable water, suffering and the loss of many precious lives from rampant infectious disease and also a growing number of deserted villages. Peshawar-kai responded quickly to this situation with plans to dig wells and develop water source securement project in 2,000 areas. Peshawar-kai has saved the livelihood of many individuals and has also helped to prevent numerous people from becoming refugees.

Peshawar-kai has contributed to peace and human security through activities such as practice in medical and primary health care. Peshawar-kai has also shown devotion to rescuing human lives and securing basic human rights amidst such social anxieties such as poverty; in doing so, these corresponding activities have achieved success in raising awareness for universal peace. Simultaneously, Peshawar-kai has also effectively demonstrated the possibility of volunteer activities in Asia by the Japanese.

Towards the reconstruction of Afghanistan, it is expected that Peshawar-kai will contribute to the stability of the Asia-Pacific region through a broad range of activities such as: medical services, water-source projects, agricultural reconstruction projects, and road maintenance in the future.

“AMDA International” (hereinafter AMDA) is the first United Nations medical NGO established in Japan. It is expanding its medical and humanitarian support activities that aim to improve the life conditions of those underprivileged and marginalized people who are victims of war, natural disasters and poverty in Asia, Africa and Central South America.

Since AMDA’s establishment, it has given about 50 countries the impression of Japan’s active role in international contribution.

AMDA’s operating activities are based on three principles: “respect for the culture of others”, “respect for the innate capacity of communities to help themselves” and “respect for the trust bestowed on AMDA by others”. These principles from the base of spontaneous diversity and contribute to promote the realization of peace.

Furthermore, “medical peace”, as proposed by AMDA, is a concept which aims to minimize disputes through international medical cooperation, and contributes to a peace process whereby the two disputing parties are provided with peace and human security support through humanitarian assistance activities in the form of medical treatment.

In accordance with the philosophy: “if needed, we will go anywhere to help”, and with its practical accomplishments, AMDA has established trust among foreign countries.

Third Laureate (2006)

Mr. Ryosei Nakama, Director of Okinawa-Laos Cleft Palate Patient Support Center

Okinawa-Laos Cleft Palate Patient Support Center

Established : August, 1995

Director : Ryosei Nakama

The Okinawa-Laos Cleft Palate Patient Support Center was founded in 1995 by a group of dentists in private practice. Together with the oral surgery unit of the Ryukyu University Medical Faculty School of Dentistry, the Center carries out a variety of treatment support and treatment technology transfer activities in Laos and other Southeast Asian countries.

Today, Japan is blessed with first-class health care that utilizes the latest in medical technology. All cleft lip and cleft palate patients are assured of adequate treatment. However, in some neighboring countries, many children do not have access to prompt and adequate surgical intervention, and these children often suffer unreasonable and painful discrimination.

Wanting to share the advanced dentistry now available in Okinawa with sufferers elsewhere, the Support Center, in cooperation with the Japanese Cleft Palate Foundation, began work in Laos, one of the world's poorest countries, in 2001.

To date, numerous cleft lip and palate surgical procedures have been performed there free of charge. The Center has also trained local staff and donated dental equipment and has devoted much effort to developing and expanding children's dental hygiene projects.

This work has given hope to people who experienced discrimination on account of their infirmities and has helped them toward full participation in society.

Laos is a country still struggling to overcome the ravages of civil war. This assistance, coming from Okinawa, which also suffered grievously in war, is a splendid expression of the spirit of mutual aid born of Okinawa's history and culture.

The Support Center plans to continue expanding its work in Laos and expects that its efforts will both establish dentistry in Laos on a firm footing and bring Okinawa and Laos closer together through the technology transfer process.

The 4th Laureate (2008)

Ms. Fusako Yanase,
President of AAR JAPAN

AAR JAPAN Association for Aid and Relief, Japan

Established : November 1979 “Association to Aid the Indochinese Refugees”
November 1984 Renamed to “Association to Aid Refugees”

Location : 7F, Mizuho Building, 2-12-2 Kamiosaki,
Shinagawa-ku, Tokyo, 141-0021 Japan
TEL: +81-3-5423-4511 FAX: +81-3-5423-4450

Association for Aid and Relief, Japan (AAR Japan), formerly known as Association to Aid the Indochinese Refugees, was the first refugee support organization to be set up in Japan. Established in 1979, AAR Japan launched in response to the international condemnation of Japan as “a country which gives the cold shoulder to refugees”, Yukika Sohma decided to demonstrate the Japanese goodwill to the world by creating AAR Japan.

AAR Japan operates beyond political, religious, and ideological borders and has provided support in more than 50 nations in the past 30 years. The NGO continues to be an active player in the global humanitarian field.

AAR Japan realizes that the disabled would often be the least likely to gain assistance in post-conflict chaos. Therefore, ever since its foundation has provided refugees with disabilities, the most vulnerable among displaced people with support they need to become self-reliant. In managing vocational training centers and operating wheelchair factories, AAR Japan contributes to supporting the financial, psychological, and social sustainability of the individual victims.

The organization has dispatched emergency support to more than 15 countries and areas, as well, has supported in the wake of major disasters such as the 2005 Pakistan Earthquake and the 2008 Cyclone in Myanmar.

In 1992, hundreds and thousands of Cambodian refugees finally returning to their homeland after the civil war encountered massive casualties because of the millions of hidden landmines. In response to this, AAR Japan took on the new responsibility of promoting the eradication of anti-personnel landmines and published the picture book, “Not Mines, but Flowers,” in an effort to advocate the global campaign to ban landmines.

Through the International Campaign to Ban Landmines, AAR Japan urged many governments including the Government of Japan to ratify the mine ban treaty. In 1997, the organization was invited officially to attending the Noble Peace Prize Award Ceremony.

Currently, AAR Japan focuses on supporting mine-risk education and providing aid for landmine victims and children who are threatened by the landmines.

With its steady activities and participatory grass-root campaigns, which include various enlightenment programs, AAR Japan has contributed to advancing citizens’ awareness of peace and fostering youths with international perspective. Thus, the organization has evolved to become a pioneer amongst international NGOs.

It is highly expected that in the coming future, AAR Japan will not only continue to focus on refugee assistance and the landmine problem, yet also extend efforts to combatting AIDS, malaria, and other wide-ranging issues. While it partners with other NGOs and remain a forerunner in initiating international humanitarian project, it is hoped that AAR Japan will continue to launch even more effective programs so that the Japanese society will be able to accept refugees.

SHARE supports activities for people living with HIV and carries out educational activities on HIV prevention in Thailand and South Africa, supports the construction of health centers and the development of human resources in the field of health in Cambodia, and also carries out activities to promote health and education in Timor-Leste. In addition, the organization makes selfless efforts in helping foreigners to live comfortably in Japan through domestic efforts such as providing health consultation visits and telephone medical consultation for foreigners who struggle with access to medical care, offering AIDS telephone consultation in Thai, and developing human resources to smoothly advance medical care for foreigners. Furthermore, SHARE has also carried out emergency support operations at the time of large-scale disasters such as the Great Hanshin and Awaji Earthquake, the Niigata Chuetsu-Oki Earthquake, and the earthquake that occurred in the ocean off Sumatra.

What can be particularly recognized are SHARE’ s healthcare activities which value a primary healthcare approach, strive to realize a society in which all people can live in good physical and mental health, and which are based on a long-term perspective. Moreover, local resident participatory activities which involve thinking together with local residents, facilitating their independence, and providing sideline support for their independent initiatives are structured in a way that allows local residents themselves to continue their initiatives long-term, which is expected to lead to the fruition and further development of these community activities.

SHARE’ s over 27 years of experience and achievements are expected to save those people and regions which, even now, are deprived of living healthy lives, as well as to be a force of creating peace in the Asia Pacific region.

The 6th Laureate (2012)

Representative:
Mr. Toyokazu Nakata

Shapla Neer Citizens' Committee in Japan for Overseas Support

Established : September, 1972

Location : c/o Waseda Hoshien, 2-3-1 Nishi Waseda, Shinjuku-ku,
Tokyo 169-8611
Tel: +81-3-3202-7863
Fax: +81-3-3202-4593

Specified Nonprofit Corporation Shapla Neer Citizens' Committee in Japan for Overseas Support (hereafter, Shapla Neer), unaffiliated with any specific religion, government, company, or group, is an international cooperative NGO made from the feelings of ordinary citizens and running on contributions and membership fees. Based on citizens' voluntarily participation and responsibility, Shapla Neer now targets modern problems that symbolize the divide between developed and underdeveloped countries with necessary overseas participation to help. It was established in 1972 with the goal of realizing a society in which the abundant possibility in every person comes to full bloom.

Based in one of the world's poorest countries, Bangladesh, Shapla Neer works with too large a segment of the population to offer transient support. Instead, they give the necessary support for a society in which main players have learned to independently participate over 40 long years.

Until now, through agricultural training, income betterment programs through financial coaching, and more, they have focused on comprehensive rural development. Shapla Neer turns its eyes to street children, working children, women and the elderly, the handicapped, natives, and others who have been "left behind" societally and economically. They discover local issues that often go unnoticed, conducting meticulous activities like offering supplementary education to children, classes teaching women about their rights, and complex activities selling local, handmade products as fair trade.

In order to solve problems symbolizing the North-South divide, they face these problems head on as their own, rather than as far-away issues. They extend the range of their support: emergency relief and reconstruction support for cyclones, floods, and other natural disasters, as well as drawing up regional disaster prevention plans aiming for disaster risk reduction.

Continuing over many years, Shapla Neer has built a bond with local communities that will continue into the future. Their activities in Bangladesh, Nepal, India (West Bengal) and other places will develop even further, underpinned by the trust of the people with their experiences and achievements. We have high hopes for their development of a foundation for peace in the Asia-Pacific Region.

The 7th Laureate (2014)

International Medical Volunteers
Japan Heart
Board Chairman Dr. Hideto Yoshioka

International Medical Volunteers Japan Heart

Established : May 2004

Location : 3th Floor, 1-5-10 Kotobuki, Taito-ku,
Tokyo, Japan

TEL: +81-3-6240-1564

International Medical Volunteers Japan Heart (henceforth, Japan Heart) is a volunteer-based international health care organization founded in 2004 by its representative Dr. Hideto Yoshioka and others who endorse his efforts. It aims to further increase the quality of health care services based on Dr. Yoshioka's long years of overseas medical experience.

Japan Heart's fundamental principle is "providing health care to areas where it is currently out of reach, wherever that may be." It provides assistance so that medical care may reach impoverished regions overseas who struggle with a shortage of doctors, remote rural areas and isolated islands within Japan, and the hearts of children who are battling with sickness.

Beginning in Myanmar, which suffers from poverty and a lack of medical staff, Japan Heart has dispatched many medical professionals and volunteers such as doctors and nurses from Japan to Cambodia, Laos, and elsewhere. Aside from providing high quality medical services without salary or compensation, it is also engaged in the training of local medical staff, all in an effort to convey the peaceful heart of Japan.

In Myanmar especially, each year Japan Heart carries out roughly 12,000 medical examinations and 2,000 operations with the cooperation of volunteer doctors and nurses. Their work is also being promoted in Cambodia and Laos, where the governments of those countries have entered into agreements regarding medical collaboration.

Furthermore, Japan Heart dispatches doctors and nurses to medical clinics in isolated islands and remote rural areas throughout Japan that are hindered by a shortage of medical personnel. While providing medical services that are uniquely tailored to each region, it is also involved in training up qualified professionals in order to create "self-reliant nurses."

The 8th Laureate (2016)

Ms. Eri Ishikawa
Chairperson of JAR

Japan Association for Refugees (JAR)

Established : July 1999

Location : TAS Building 4F 2-5-2 Nishikanda,
Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo

URL : <https://www.refugee.or.jp/>

TEL : +81-3-5379-6001 or info@refugee.or.jp

Representative : Ms. Eri Ishikawa

The nonprofit Japan Association for Refugees (henceforth, JAR) was born in response to the relatively low number of government recognized refugees despite the increasing number of refugees and asylum-seekers actually in Japan. It was established in 1999 primarily by members of the international human rights NGO Amnesty Japan who saw the need to provide holistic support for these refugees.

As a contract partner of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), JAR strives for “the realization of improved support for refugees” and “working with refugees to create a better society” and is engaged in various activities to achieve these goals.

Their work in Japan involves legal aid such as helping refugees with application procedures for official recognition and daily life support by providing personal consultations and medical aid to individual refugees. They also provide practical support for living in Japan such as Japanese language study assistance for refugee children and Japanese language study follow-ups for refugees who have found employment. In addition to providing direct support for immigrants, they also carry out PR outreach efforts. One of these is a periodic “Refugee assistant training course” for the general public including students, company employees, housewives, and more to deepen understanding of and interest in refugees.

As one of the founding members of the Asia Pacific Refugee Rights Network, JAR actively works overseas in the Asia Pacific Region in conjunction with local governments and refugee rights NGOs in an effort to increase international communication and cooperation. Additionally, they push for improvement in refugee rights and acceptance via policy proposals to both the Japanese government and UN agencies.

Due to JAR’ s steady and comprehensive projects over the past fifteen plus years and their PR and outreach efforts to ensure the continuation of their projects, they have greatly contributed to the absorption of a peaceful mentality in the people of Japan and we hope their efforts will help form the bedrock for the establishment of peace across the Asia Pacific region.

The 9th Laureate (2018)

Mr. Takaki Imai

The non-profit organization The Japan International Volunteer Center (hereafter referred to as “JVC”) was established in 1980 with the large influx of Indochina refugees in Thailand, with the focus on volunteers who “want to contribute to relief efforts, not only as Asians, but as people.

The JVC has the vision (long-term goal) to “create a society where everyone can live peacefully, coexisting with nature and each other.” As an international NPO, JVC has offered humanitarian support in livelihood betterment, regional development, and medicine in 11 countries including Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Afghanistan, and South Sudan, assisting local people in efforts to build peace, as well as disaster recovery in Japan.

Additionally, utilizing the examples set by the Official Development Assistance (ODA) and its aid policies, we are also putting emphasis on policy advocacy with international organizations and the Japanese government so that a peaceful society can be established through dialogue.

The JVC has left an outstanding track record in the Asia-Pacific region throughout the scope of their long history and multilateral activities promoting peace, anti-violence, and guarantee for people’s safety.

Moreover, the medium-term goal (2016 – 2020) is to actively participate in peace-building activities, and the projects held up until now are expected to continue into the future and greatly contribute to the promotion of peace-building.

The Japan NGO Center for International Cooperation (JANIC) (hereinafter referred to as "JANIC") was established in 1987 as the "NGO Activity Promotion Center", a network organization for NGOs, to share information among NGOs and enhance their ability to disseminate information to society, at a time when Japanese NGOs in international cooperation were developing.

JANIC has grown to become one of Japan's leading network NGOs and it has 101 regular member organizations, and provides logistical support to NGOs working to resolve social issues such as conflict, poverty, and environmental destruction in the Asia-Pacific region, including the Philippines, Cambodia, and Nepal. JANIC also plays a very important role in the maturation of civil society by connecting a wide range of domestic and international organizations and citizens.

In particular, JANIC has broadened the scope of its activities as a leader and a facilitator for the entire international cooperation NGO sector in Japan, strengthening the capacity of NGOs, making policies, recommendations, and negotiating with the government. Through the coordination and mediation of the entire international cooperation NGO sector, JANIC's contribution in shaping the infrastructure for NGOs and civil society to achieve more real value has been significant.

In addition, the mid to long-term plan, "JANIC Vision 2022," sets the goal of "making NGO an indispensable part of Japanese society as one of the sectors that make up society, and building a firm position for them". Furthermore, the efforts to enliven the entire international cooperation NGO sector by addressing the issues faced by NGOs and continuing to provide steady support, and to build the "ideal" international cooperation NGO sector in the future with an eye to the future, are expected to lead to the further development of international cooperation NGOs in the Asia-Pacific region.

The 11th Laureate (2022)

The Okinawa Himeyuri Peace Foundation
Chief Director Mr. Masanori Nakahodo

The Himeyuri Peace Museum run by the Okinawa Himeyuri Peace Foundation

Established : 1960
Address : 671-1 Ihara Itoman-city, Okinawa
Phone : +81-98-997-2100
Chief Director : Masanori Nakahodo

The Himeyuri Alumnae Incorporated Foundation (2011: renamed The Okinawa Himeyuri Peace Foundation) was established in 1960. It was established when it started to regain stability after the war as an incorporated foundation that was based on the alumni association of Okinawa Women's Normal School and the First Prefectural Girls High School, which reunited soon after the war. Their schools were destroyed during the battle of Okinawa and closed.

It has been 77 years since the war ended and most of the current generation has no idea what war really is. The Okinawa Himeyuri Peace Foundation has worked with the aim of continuing the calls for eternal world peace and never allowing a war happen ever again. They work toward this by passing down the experiences of the Himeyuri Student Corps and relaying the reality of the war. They are playing a very important role in correctly bequeathing the memories of the horrible war to the next generation.

The foundation established the Himeyuri Peace Museum in 1989, since then 23 million people have visited the museum. The museum exhibits valuable materials like the belongings of the Himeyuri students that were left in the cave they had sheltered in during the war. The museum is utilized as a learning place for peace where the survivors of the Himeyuri Student Corps tell their own stories of the war as "witnesses". For many years, they have made a significant contribution to peace education for the younger generations of Okinawan residents as well as for school trip students from outside Okinawa.

As time passes, we see the decline in the numbers of people who had experienced the war first-hand, and so the museum is developing successors for the narrators. On the other hand, with the improvements in English services, the museum has carried out activities to share the memories of the battle of Okinawa to the world and has held exhibitions in several Asian languages. We expect their contributions to the promotion of international peace, not only in local society but beyond borders and for their further development as well.
